BASIC REQUIREMENTS (From The Yale News.)

The United States is one of the few remaining strongholds of culture on the face of the globe. Hitler, in his lust for the power of a despot ruling ignorant slaves, has put an end to higher education and scholarly research on the Continent and destroyed virtually all the art collections, libraries, and museum pieces which were the backbone of European intellectual life. Thus for many years to come there can be no institutions of higher learning, no art schools, drama schools, or research laboratories for the study of the pure sciences.

England has realized this. England, foreseeing the potential eclipse of culture throughout Europe, is even now delegating qualified scholars to carry on in their work so that some will be prepared, when the great day of victory arrives, to rehabilitate intellectual life in the conquered nations.

And yet in this country the gray of dawn is just breaking. We are just beginning to perceive the immense responsibility that the war has placed upon us. We are just beginning to realize that for the most part we shall be held accountable for the preservation of culture during and after the war, that we must be prepared to supply most of the manpower to rejuvenate European universities and cultural life in general.

It is toward these ends that Yale College has broadened the basic requirements for Freshmen and Sophomores in all departments. By this move Yale is both helping to prevent the stagnation of culture in America and concurrently preparing some men to carry on the traditions of liberal education during the trials which lie ahead.

But Yale's action is by no means enough. Joint action on the part of every university and college in the country would not be enough. Following the lead of England, it is the part of our government to keep the fires of culture and cultural institutions burning throughout the emergency. That does not mean intensified "business as usual" with a college education for all. It does not mean "culture comes first, the military and industrial effort second." Quite the contrary. It means that a secondary, but nevertheless highly important part of our total American war effort is the preservation of intellectual life toward the day when culture will again become one of the stabilizing factors in a world at peace.

Recognition of this in Washington is far from a reality. But recognition must and will come, bringing with it such government action as is necessary to insure the continuation of cultural research and scholarly achievement for the duration of the emergency. In the meantime Yale's action is significant in that it demonstrates a determination to broaden the basic requirements for the B.A. degree despite the current temper of national opinion on the subject.

THE BEST DEFENSE (From The Dartmouth.)

Do you think that the Germans will bomb New York?

Up and down the Atlantic seaboard civilians are being asked to man air raid warden posts, school children are being taught what to do in the event hostile planes are reported on their way, fire departments are being instructed in the methods of extinguishing incendiary bombs, and a mock alarm is sounded in Manhattan so the newsreels can take a picture of Times Square during an air raid. In Hanover each dormitory and fraternity house has its own air raid warden, and Johnny Rand is organizing the townspeople.

To whatever degree of seriousness

Grill Room Succeeds Pit

New Hang-out Features Music And Snacks

The Union House Committee has decided to make the Grill room in the Union into a common meeting place for the students. This decision was made in view of the fact that the intended occupation of Strathcona Hall by the School for Teachers from Macdonald College will necessitate the closing of the Pit. The Committee realized the need for a place where the students could get together, and has taken steps to provide the well-known "hang-out" with a suitable successor.

Arrangements have been made with the Cafeteria whereby sandwiches, soft drinks, milkshakes etc., will be available from eight o'clock in the morning until seven at night. In order to give the new meeting

McGill Graduate Of 1876 Is Dead

A. D. Taylor Was Oldest Graduate Of University

Archibald Dunbar Taylor, K.C., the oldest living graduate of McGill University, died Friday at his residence, in his 90th year. Mr. Taylor was born in Montreal, and attended Montreal High School, and continued his education here at McGill, where he graduated in 1876.

Mr. Taylor was made a King's Counsel after he moved to Vancouver in 1900, and established his practice in British Columbia.

He took a keen interest in athletics, especially football. In his early days he played for McGill, later for the City of Montreal, and while abroad took part in several international matches.

Mr. Taylor was the son of the late T. M. Taylor, and a nephew of John James and Peter Redpath. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alister Forbes, of this city, and a son, Major T. A. H. Taylor, O.B.E., M.C., of the H.D.Q. Pacific Command, Victoria, B.C.

He was a well known reciter of ballad poems of the late Dr. William Henry Drummond of whom he was a personal friend, and he was also interested in church affairs.

SADIE DIES; SPIRIT LIVES ON

Coeds Announce Turnabout Time

Spinster Spree, Coed Coast Will Be Featured

The charges will be reversed next week as the spirit of Sadie Hawkins lives on. The Women's Union and M.W.S.A.A. jointly announced last night that Turnabout Time, a reincarnation of Sadie Hawkins Week, will be held from Tuesday, January 27, till Thursday, January 29, inclusive, and that the Spinster's Spree and Co-ed Coast will be featured as in previous years.

The celebration will be in honour of the forgotten man who foots the bill the other 51 1/2 weeks in the year. "The entertainments are intended to be a sporting gesture on the part of the co-eds at McGill to show that they can do the asking, the honours, and pay up with a smile," stated a member of the executive.

Women's Union Buys $500 Bond

Contribution by Commerce School Also Announced

The Women's Union recently announced the purchase of a $500 Victory Bond of the $800,000,000 Victory Loan which will be launched next month. The Treasurer, Margery Gaunt, explained that the bonds had been bought with funds which had accumulated in the savings account of the Women's Union. "We had the money and knew where to place it," stated a member of the executive, "that's all."

The bond is one of the third issue of Victory Loan floated by the Canadian Government since the outbreak of the war. Although bonds of this issue have not as yet gone on sale officially many requests have already been received by the committee in charge of this loan.

In its purchase, the Women's Union takes its place with the Arts Undergraduate Society, which bought Bond No. 1, and the Commerce Society. It was decided at the last meeting of the Executive of the Commerce Undergraduate Society to purchase a $50 War Bond to help the War Effort. This was made possible because of the curtailment of certain activities of the Society.

In this way the students of McGill are helping to supply the means to purchase vital war necessities to fight the totalitarian powers.

Newman Club Plans Dance

Delegates Have Been Chosen For Convention

At a meeting of the Newman Club held yesterday morning it was decided to have a dance on the 6th of February, at the Park Slide Club. The price of admission will be $1.50 per couple. This does not include refreshments. Music will be provided by a Wurlitzer. All those attending will also have access to the park slide. A committee has been appointed to make all the necessary arrangements.

Jim Courright, secretary of the Canadian Province's Newman Club gave an outline of the Newman Club Convention which will take place on the week-end of February 7th at London, Ontario. John Cashin and Kevin Fay have been delegated to act as representatives at the convention for McGill. This convention is an annual affair and provides an excellent opportunity for all branches of the Newman Club to come together and discuss mutual problems and plans.

CAMSI to Publish First National Student Journal

Well-known Doctors Contribute Papers To First Issue

The first national students' journal in Canada is being published by the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, and will be entitled the CAMSI National Journal. It will be an important addition to periodical literature of Canadian medicine, in that original papers by leading authorities will be published in each issue.

The editorial board will consist of one member from each Medical school in Canada, and the publication offices are housed permanently here at McGill. Ralph D. Rabinovitch of McGill is the Managing Editor, and our representative to the editorial board is James F. Stevenson.

The CAMSI National Journal will contain articles on medical students' and internes' problems. The policy of the journal will be based on the maximum effort that the students will be able to put forth in the National War Effort. Students' health will be discussed, while interne maintenance will also be a subject of discussion.

The subject of scholarships also will be prominently featured in the various articles, and the operation of a Book Co-operative, that is, the

Sadie Hawkins Dies Suddenly

Dogpatch Belle Mourned Over Whole Continent

The office of the Women's Union received word last night from Dogpatch, Kentucky, of the death of Miss Sadie Hawkins. Miss Hawkins was well-known to McGill as a rabid feminist and as instigator of an annual "get-your-man" hunt.

Public buildings in the town of Dogpatch are displaying black crepe in honour of the deceased and flags are being flown at half-mast. The obituary column of the "Dogpatch Daily" was filled by an elegy written in praise of Miss Hawkins by the secretary to the mayor of Dogpatch.

Miss Hawkins lived a serene unmarried life in Dogpatch until the age of thirty-five, which age her father, mayor of the town, considered marriageable. The young lady

Philosophers Hold Meeting

Christianity And Marxism To Be Discussed

The Philosophical Society will meet Wednesday evening at 8.15 p.m. to hear a paper by William Goldberg, graduate student, on "Christianity and Marxism." This meeting will be held in the Grill Room of the Union instead of in Strathcona Hall.

The speaker will discuss the main features of Christian and Marxist philosophy and will treat of points of consistency and inconsistency between the two. He points out that a number of prominent Christian thinkers at the present time accept Marxist views to a greater or less extent and mentions the Dean of Canterbury as an example. The paper will, in part at least, explore the possibility of reconciling these two approaches to the problems of mankind.

"It is unnecessary to say that the subject to be discussed concerns one of the most vital issues of the day. A large turnout is expected at Wednesday's meeting," the executive declared last night.

Anyone interested may attend the meeting, which will be followed by discussion.

The following meeting will be held one week from Wednesday.

Debaters Will Hold Contest

Representatives Of McGill Meet Montreal Club

Tonight at 8.15, the McGill Debating Union Society is taking part in its first debate of the Montreal Debating League held at the Queens Hotel. The opposing team consists of two debaters from the Rostrom Club.

They will argue the resolution that public utilities should be vested in the Provincial governments. The Rostrom Club is upholding the affirmative of the argument while McGill is defending the negative of the resolution. Ruth Hill and Jean Mitchell, both third year Arts students are going to represent McGill.

There are five or six more debates scheduled within the Montreal League and, as the executive stated, they should prove wonderful experience to those interested in debating. These debates will partially make up for the reduced international and intercollegiate debating schedule and they will also give less experienced debaters the chance to compete against outsiders and to all to establish contact with men in business, which should be of value to students once they leave college.

Increasing Numbers of Students Leave McGill To Enter Armed Forces

Shot of Mr. Day Wins Prize in Annual Contest

Second "Campus Life" Competition To Begin Shortly

By E.H.

The award of a free copy of "Old McGill 1942" to Allan Vroom (Bsc. 4), winner of the first Campus Life contest, was announced last night by the Annual Board. Vroom's picture of Dr. Day fishing in his pocket for pennies during the Mile of Pennies Campaign was outstanding, according to photography editor F. J. Paine, because it contained the three factors necessary in Campus Life shots: contemporary interest in that it deals with the Mile of Pennies Campaign; local interest in its picturing of a campus celebrity; and human interest in the amusing expression and pose of the campaigners' victim.

This last factor of human interest, says the editor will be the element most sought in the second contest, which begins this week. Two annuals will be awarded for the best pictures handed in before February 15th. And this time, says Paine, he will be looking for novel, amusing shots more than for "straight" pictures of campus scenes. There is still room, of course, for snapshots of sports, of military activities, and of social events. Friday's Red Cross Dance, for instance, should provide lots of material.

"But pictures like that are not enough, to make the photography section as interesting a part of the Annual as it was last year," says the Editor.

SCM Holds First Chapel Service

Classical Music And Commentaries Are Featured

The S.C.M. held its first Chapel Service and Open House of the year last night. Reverend P. S. Powles led the Service.

After Chapel there was Open House held in the Social Room of Divinity Hall. The program consisted of a short sing-song followed by a musicale of selections from the great operas. The music included the "Hungarian Rhapsody" and interludes from Tannhauser and Carmen, with short commentaries on the composers, Miss Dorothy Fleming, last year's secretary of the S.C.M., was present at the Open House.

The future residence of the S.C.M. will be at 3474 University street, just below Pine avenue, as Strathcona Hall will be occupied by the teachers from Macdonald College for the duration of the War.

After the musicale, refreshments were served.

Enlistments Include Active Members of Clubs and Societies

Among the latest recruits to His Majesty's services, from the McGill Commerce Faculty is the president of the Commerce Undergraduate Society — Dick Stevenson, Com. 4, who has resigned this office, owing to his enlistment in the Navy. He has already left the University.

At the next meeting of the Political Economy Club, which is scheduled to be held on Thursday, Jim Lewtas, President of the Club, will tender his resignation. He will also leave the University shortly to join the Navy. Furthermore, among the members of this club who have left their college career, is Bob Kingsland, Arts 3, a member of the Executive, who has joined the R.C.A.F. Another member of the Arts Faculty who has gone on active service in the Navy, is Ralph Flitton, Arts 4.

39 Students Enlist

In connection with the resignation of Dick Stevenson, it may be noted here that of the 55 students who originally formed the Commerce Class of '42, only 16 remain, the other 39 having enlisted at some time since the outbreak of war.

It was decided at an executive meeting of the Society that since only these sixteen do remain, from among whom a new president must be chosen, that the election would be held openly. This election is scheduled to take place tomorrow in Room 21, of the Arts Building, at 1.00 p.m.

It was decided by the Executive of this Society at their last meeting that a $50.00 War Savings certificate would be purchased, to further the war effort. This purchase was made possible by curtailment of certain activities of the Society.

With reference to Jim Lewtas' resignation, it is stated that no definite plans have been made as yet, for the future of the club, but it is expected that they will be announced shortly, following the meeting this week.

Bob Kingsland, in addition to serving in the Political Economy Club, was president of 3rd year Arts and Science, Vice-President of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society and a member of the Junior Prom Committee.

Campus activities of Ralph Flitton included the following: Publicist.

"THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER" AT LOEW'S THEATRE

Honestly following the essential pattern of the original play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is a substantial hunk of entertainment. For once, Hollywood decided to leave well enough alone and, as a result, produced a good picture. The rich wit that embellished the Kaufman and Hart play has been preserved to a considerable degree, so that the film version still packs a pretty hefty punch.

In fact, some improvements have been made. The advantages of a camera in procuring close-ups and shifts of scenes were employed in a degree sufficient to dispel the monotonous concentration of the original on one creature in one wheel-chair in one unchanging setting.

Here the improvements cease, and in all other features it is the play which can boast the superior rendition of the story.

The play, for instance, is more virile. Unfortunately when films are made, such factors as Mr. Hays and all the foreign legions of decency and morality et al enter into the reckoning. Result is a general toning down of all the sophisticated jargon of Broadway. "Sex-starved" becomes "love-starved." A gag which concerned Hedy Lamarr's brassiere is changed to feature Lana Turner's sweater. All the innuendoes concerning Lorraine Sheldon, a famous actress who, in the original version was more of a transatlantic harlot, are modified so that the young lady stands depicted as a glamorous creature with ants and unscrupulous ambitions.

Moreover, when the studios clipped the risqué parts, they robbed the story of its exceedingly fast tempo. The original opus had been beautifully tailored so that three quick climaxes and an epic culmination took care of all the curtain falls. Stepping in, the picture first slows down each part with its less pungent gags and then the whole story, with its sacrifice of pace to continuity.

Monty Woolley, of course, is the focal point, for the plot has been built to revolve about one man, Sheridan Whiteside, a parody of Alexander Woollcott. Woolley lives the part, having played it hundreds of times on the stage. No matter how imperious or supercilious, how self-satisfied, how boorish, or how presumptuous he becomes, the latent humour cannot absent itself. Nor does the sympathy of the audience for the man who came to dinner and stayed a month ever wane.

Why Bette Davis was cast into the role of the efficient secretary remains a mystery. There's no scope whatsoever in this secondary part for the talents of so fine an actress. Somewhat masochistically, she even underacts her part by standing around and looking even more blasé and dispassionate than is required.

And when it comes to the romantic angle, Bette Davis is far from convincing. Hardly beautiful and looking decidedly matronly, she is neither the type to sweep "the handsomest man in town" madly off his feet nor to develop an intense love for him unless it be a maternal instinct.

La Sheridan tackles her role with gusto and turns in a creditable and very attractive performance. As siren Lorraine Sheldon, she pumps personable Richard Travis who is the newspaperman Bette Davis is after. The battle between the cynical secretary and the clinical playgirl is a highspot.

The minor parts are all capably enacted. Reginald Gardiner is good as the parody of Noel Coward and Jimmy Durante is amusing as Banjo although his rendition is more reminiscent of Schnozzle Durante than the Harpo Marx which the plot calls for. Billie Burke and Grant Mitchell are convincing small-town babbies.—H. S.

The current attraction at the Princess brings back, after a considerable absence, that ever-green comedian of the silver screen Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante in a starring role. Yet this is more than a starring role; the whole picture is a two-man circus of fun revolving round the antics of Durante and Phil Silvers, his new screen partner, and a whippet tank.

All too often, in the past, when the former great men of Hollywood have come back to the screen to repeat their earlier triumphs, they have fallen flat upon a public which, without realizing it, has, together with the movie industry, outgrown them. This can not be said for Durante; now he is as great as he ever was, probably greater; there is still no one on the screen who can pull the laughs out better or faster.

The story centres round the adventures of two ardent vacuum cleaner salesmen who try to sell their wares to a recruiting sergeant. In their enthusiasm to complete a sale which seems to be progressing favourably, they sign some forms which are passed to them and find themselves enlisted in Uncle Sam's growing army. To add to their already hilarious troubles, they find that they have been assigned to a cavalry unit whose colonel has had more than his fair share of grief at their hands during a demonstration of the vacuum cleaner.

The romantic angle is taken care of by a romance between the colonel's daughter and a young officer whose unpleasant duty it has become to mechanize the older man's cavalry unit. In his efforts to convince his future father-in-law of the superiority of tanks over horses the young officer, played by Regis Toomey, is aided by the two ex-salesmen and a whippet tank that they have adopted.

The various complications arising out of this situation, handled with a perfect blend of slapstick comedy and good dialogue, and with an adequate mixture of music, gives rise to one of the most amusing photoplays of the current season.

The supporting feature, Steel Against the Sky, is the story of a family of bridge builders, which is rent asunder by the usual triangle. This film is handled adequately throughout, and although worthy of no special mention, is good solid fare and does not give rise to many impatient moments.—P. H.

"KEEP 'EM FLYING" AT THE PALACE

A Universal picture, directed by Arthur Lubin. Screenplay by Nat Perrin and John Grant. Original story by Edmund L. Hartman.

Characters. Blackie Benson.....Bud Abbott
Heathcliff.....Lou Costello
Barbara Phelps.....Martha Raye
Gloria Phelps.....Martha Raye
Linda Joyce.....Carol Bruce
Craig Morrison.....William Gargan
Jimmy Tobert.....Dick Foran
Jim Joice.....Charles Lang
Mr. Conigle.....Truman Bradley
Major Barstow.....Loring Smith

If you listen to a certain Sunday evening radio show, you have no doubt become acquainted with the antics of "Hey Abbott!" Abbott, otherwise known as Bud, and his fat gag throwing partner, Lou Costello. These two laugh provokers are featured in their latest cinematic opus Keep 'Em Flying.

This picture might rightly be called a marathon of mirth for the laughs come one after another, with a brief respite afforded by the serious (so called) side of the plot. It consists of slapstick routines, facial contortions, screwball fast dialogue, all a carryover from the boys' earlier days on the "Burley" circuit (as Variety calls it). One thing we noticed was that whenever there was a good line, the action in the picture would stop and continue after the burst of laughter. This is a considerable improvement over their other efforts, when many of the lines were lost.

Abbott and Costello unlike other comedians adapt their gags to fit the story. Although the latter is of minor importance it is well acted. The complications of plot concern the misadventures of an ex-transport, ex-carnival flyer, Dick Foran, while at Cal-Aero. Foran tries to assist the brother of the girl he loves, Carol Bruce, to solo by taking him up in the air and then bailing out and leaving him alone in the plane. For this unethical procedure he is 'washed out' but there are many changes before the final reel and the story ends up to the satisfaction of everyone.

Particular mention should be made of Carol Bruce, who like A & C comes from radio. She photographs well and her singing style is pleasing to say the least. One number "Getting Sentimental Over You" (Tommy Dorsey's theme) is particularly well done.

"LOOK WHO'S LAUGHING" AT THE CAPITOL

If you like Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly, and the rest of their stooges, then you will enjoy "Look Who's Laughing," in its second week at the Capitol.

The movie is a patch quilt of the routines of these radio headliners, but the story which binds these episodes together is very weak.

Edgar Bergen plays himself, the radio ventriloquist, who, out for a holiday, accidentally lands his plane on the airport of Wistful Vista, the town immortalized by Fibber McGee on his radio program. Here Bergen accepts the hospitality of the McGees, and then gets mixed up in a civic affair. Fibber too gets mixed up in the same affair, which revolves about a land deal. Gildersleeve is the culprit who is acting for a crooked land agent, and it is he who complicates matters. Lucille Ball, acting as Bergen's secretary, and incidentally, the love interest, ironies out the crooked deal, and after a slapstick airplane chase, all is well again.

Harold Peary, who characterizes Gildersleeve, is a sure bet for similar roles in the future. RKO Radio has a new find, and he will add plenty of good fun to any movie which needs a talented man such as he. Isabel Randolph, who portrays Mrs. Uppington does not get a chance to display her wares.

The added attraction, "The Gay Falcon," starring George Sanders is a typical Class B mystery story, and concerns a playboy who is interested in crimes and pretty women. The story centres about jewel robberies and murders. Allen Jenkins plays the part of Sanders'

Letter Forum

Editor, McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,—Let me see—some editorial and 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 answers in December 18 Daily to my letter re the "Beauty Contest." Whew! What a hornet's nest stirred up! But only one thing you said stung me. More of that later.

Gentlemen (I hope you are gentlemen) I am a woman, an elderly dame with one big toe in the grave. This time you are up against the world's worst—or best—arguer. For over forty years I have been constantly arguing "and the muscular strength it gave to my jaw, has lasted the rest of my life." Why, I can distinctly remember the very moment I was born, I sat bolt upright and wagged a red reproving finger at my mother's midwife (I was born abroad) and I cried—

"Nein, nein! My gut woman, dis is not the right way to bring me into dis vicked world!" And I've been arguing ever since.

Thank God I never married! My poor imaginary hubby would before the collapse of the honeymoon have succumbed to argumentitis. At least I have saved 5 men from premature deaths. I deserve a medal.

Now to be serious. So many angry letters! When you are as aged and decrepit as I, you will learn not to lose your tempers in arguments. "Methinks he doth protest too much!" What a whole world of psychology lies in those wise words. "Students are human—" Yes, thank Heaven, but Hitler and the filthy bestiality representing Germany today are inhuman. And after all, is it humane to allow another man to do your fighting for you?

Peter Hall, who wrote a fine letter, says that many engineers have tried to enlist more than once. More power to them and I doff my unbecoming hat to all such. It is a shame that our government has never given out enlistment buttons. But Peter is proud of himself. Well, it's always nice to know that someone is proud of you, even though it be only yourself. So I am a budding war strategist? News to me! But not such a bad idea at that. At least I would never have sent out such ideal targets as the Prince of Wales and the Repulse without adequate fighter escort. Do you not agree that dreadnoughts minus air support are sorry misnomers?

Several writers claim that their "morale" is sunk so sub-zero that "Beauty Contests" are required to bolster such "morale." How can any thinking civilian Canadian even mention our "morale" when we are so surrounded by soft, smooth living? Compare ourselves to the hideous Hell of bombed England and please stop such cheap tripe, even in fun. How many young Germans are attending universities and in the middle of such a gambler's war as this holding "Beauty Contests"? No girl with an atom of breeding ever goes in for such rubbishy things, any way. One writer infers I am jealous! If I had my way, all girls would be pretty and all men plain, because most handsome males are insufferably conceited. My idea of a stunner is Miss Therese Millette, in Dec. 18th Star. Look her up—I mean, look it up.

And then several writers become personal and suggest that I, too, am a shirker. Forgive a few personalities. I was a very young girl during the last war. I am glad that I can remember that war. Two of my cousins left McGill at the ages of 17 and 18 and went all through the four years of fighting.

I offered myself then to work at munitions and was turned down abruptly. So I entered a bank and when conscription came in 1917, I took the place of a husky Fr. Canadian, who went more willingly than some of the Eng. speaking conscripts. We young, inexperienced girls saved the day for the banks. I slaved—I knew what it was to get home at 1 a.m. But the moment the war was ended we got a raw deal and were thrown out. The man who took my place lasted four days. Then he blew up. Finally, they had to put a paying teller and a receiving teller and an accountant in my place. That is how the grateful banks treated us! My sister knew a girl whose place was taken by four men. She is still in Verdun Mental Hospital. As soon as this war began, I offered my services to work at nights for Major — on war work, but was again rejected because of health. My bank account has suffered from pernicious anaemia ever since buying a war bond. Perhaps yours too needs a money transfusion? Like many other McGillites I am also buying W.S. stamps and certificates. Also knitting for the m.m. I hope all our beautiful coeds are knitting also. Not just sport sweaters for themselves.

Now you know perfectly well that my argument is basically just when I say that there are many students here who both could and should enlist for our active army. Especially Freshies.

This is the 3rd war in which my eldest brother has offered himself. He is the eldest son of a large family and at barely 17 he worked his way over on a cattle boat to So. Africa and saw fighting in the last year of that war. Last war, four days after it was declared, he again enlisted and went all through it. He served with such distinction that the Br. Govt. offered him a diplomatic post in Paris. At the time of the Munich fiasco, when 99% of the Br. Empire could not see beyond their noses, he wrote me that every man would be needed in a war again. When War 2 broke out, he immediately enlisted and is at present in the dangerous Singapore area, I believe. He is now a Major, and also an F.R.G.S., a much higher honour than knighthood. When I think that he has enlisted so that some of you unthinking students may bolster your "morale" with "Beauty Contests"—can you blame me if I hit out at you? Would you not feel exactly the same in my place? My brother does not need his morale "bolstered." It is innate and also with all men of courage.

When some of your "dashing, daring" engineers have done only 1-3 of what he has done and is doing, then your words may make some real impression on me. Until then—

Well, we will at least agree to disagree. We both loathe the rottenly unfair volunteer system. And, like you too, I always make it a rule to count 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 before flying into a perfect rage. This is my final epistle to the Heavens, you will be glad to know. Now, being mere males, you may have the last word or words.

Amen.

SLEEP TAXED.

About the last free commodity in the country has fallen before the growing system of federal defense taxes, according to the following notice on the bulletin board of the Law building:

To whom it may concern: Greeting and salutation; peace be with you; and a very merry Christmas etc., etc.

Due to the heavy burdens imposed under the new tax law we find it necessary to impose the following additional fees and charges for classroom sleeping.

Unavoidable catnaps—5 cents per catnap.

Day dreaming with eyes closed—2 cents per dream.
Sleep accompanied by snores without cutout—3 cents per snore.
Sleep accompanied by snores with cutout—1 cent per snore.
Talking in sleep—no charge.
Pillows for those who recline on the desks. Bring your own.

All fees are due and payable to the respective instructor immediately following the conclusion of the class. No Credit.

INTERESTING PEOPLE

Oley, the Swede, had come to America seeking golden opportunity and freedom from the class yoke which his type wore.

Landing a job with the street department in a large eastern city, Oley soon gained the respect of his co-workers for his industry and initiative, and soon was called Mr. Oley.

The boys initiated him into a lodge and it became Brother Oley. This was beyond his wildest dream of success. When he was made an officer in the lodge it was the Honorable Brother Oley, and Oley's swelling ego prepared itself for greater things.

Wondering what advancement came next, Oley strolled into church one Sunday a few minutes late. As the usher took him down the aisle, his fondest dreams came true—for Oley heard the congregation standing and singing "Oley, Oley Oley—Lord God Almighty."

Oilers Continue Unbeaten While Trouncing Redmen

Vernon, Holdredge, Delbel Star For McGill

A. S. T.

Faltering before the powerful attack of a well-greased Oiler quintette, the McGill Redmen suffered their second setback since entering the fold of the Montreal Basketball League. The league leaders continued their pressure throughout the game and ran up a total of 51 points against the 32 earned by the university team.

The Redmen showed great promise as the game started under way, but, late in the first half, the sustained attack of the opposition began to tell upon the wearied collegians as they started to lose ground. The second half opened with McGill making a determined bid to even the score, but when coming within four points of the Oilers, the college team weakened again, and the accurate shooting of the visiting team looked after a large majority of the remainder of the scoring.

The Oilers, paced by the high scoring of Busher Jackson and Benny Lands and the fine play-making of Joe Richman, tore through the McGill defenses and sunk basket after basket, but the determined spirit of the Redmen kept the play on a fairly even basis, despite the lopsided score.

McGill, after drawing first blood as the result of a score by Delbel, managed to hold the aggressive Oilers at bay, but after about ten minutes of play, the assaults of the visitors began to bear fruit. Jackson, scoring nine points, led the way as the Oilers ran up a total of 24 points for the first half as against 15 for McGill.

In the opening minutes of the second half the Redmen began to force the play. Lee Vernon put three through the hoop thus nearly evening up the game, but a few minutes later when the Oilers were leading by 27 to 23, the storm began to blow. Rush after rush ended with a score for the visiting team, while the Redmen were nearly powerless to stem the oncoming tide. Late in the game, Ferraro and then Courtwright were sent to the showers because of four personals. This started another Red counter-attack, but the time was so short and the odds so great, that the last bid fell short of its objective.

Outstanding for McGill were Lee Vernon, the high scorer, with a total of 9 points, Holdredge, who with 7 points was the spearhead of the Collegians attack, and Delbel, also scoring 7, was the main bulwark the Oilers had to face on the McGill defensive zone.

Jackson with 16 points and Lands with 9 were the chief scoring threats of the undefeated Oilers.

In the first game of the double bill, Mount Royal maintained its grip on second place by defeating the winless Westmount Y aggregation to the tune of 35 to 25.

Sports Correspondence

Editor, McGill Daily

Dear Sir,—A series of articles which appeared in the Toronto "Varsity" during December and early January have made it evident that unless someone sticks a pin in this "I-am-holler-than-thou" bubble which the writers for that paper have adopted for their sports program, that they are in danger of floating away. Therefore I shall attempt to explain McGill's position as regards extra-mural sports, and the reasons for calling the recent meeting of the University Presidents and members of the Board of Reference.

Perhaps I might start by quoting from the January 9 issue of the Varsity. "Biggest news, of course, was the meeting of the heads of the Big Four (minus the Principal of McGill). Just why the convention was called still remains somewhat of a mystery, for nothing was advanced on the question of intercollegiate sport that was not already known." May I now present a few facts for the edification of those who agree with this statement.

In the first place, the ruling of the agreement reached by the C.I.A.U. last June stated that local exhibition games could be arranged. This fall certain things came up which made it apparent to us that the ruling was not sufficiently clear. Did the ruling mean (1) that games could be arranged with local teams, or (2) that games could be played with teams from any centre, provided they were played on local grounds? Furthermore, did it mean that teams might play in "local" leagues? Rather than draw our own conclusions, it was decided that we should correspond with the other members of the C.I.A.U. and get their interpretation. To our disappointment, their replies indicated that they felt that outside teams should not be entertained, and that they would not enter into any organized league even though it were with local teams. In view of these indications we regrettably refused three American Universities' offers to play games at McGill at no cost to us, and instructed the local "Services League" that we would be unable to enter a hockey team along with the Army, Navy, and Air Force teams.

Consequently, we were slightly puzzled and a little annoyed when it gradually came to our attention that the Universities whom we had consulted were (1) entertaining visiting teams, and (2) playing in local leagues.

And to add insult to injury the "Varsity" had the effrontery in their issue of December 8 to state that where the other Universities fell down was in not going out and arranging local and exhibition games for their teams.

In view of this inconsistency—I was going to say hypocrisy, but perhaps that is too strong a word—can anyone ask why the meeting of the Board of Reference was called? Can anyone ask why McGill presented a resolution suggesting that all local and exhibition games be washed out, and that extramural sports be reorganized on a basis of one home game with one of the Universities in each sport? Certainly it would have meant a drastic cut in the sports program lined up at Toronto. But it would have provided (1) a more satisfactory program from the students' point of view, (2) a more uniform program for all universities, (3) more time—not less—for students to apply to very necessary military training.

There is only one other point I wish to touch on. The "Varsity" of December 8 states, "Mac McCutcheon's intramural organ is far superior to any system in any other Canadian University." We don't know anything about the U. of T. intramural program, but neither, we feel, do the Toronto writers know anything about ours. It would take too long to quote statistics, but it is certainly true that the organizers of our present intramural program have done a marvellous job in providing each and every student an opportunity to participate in any sport that he fancies.

Well, I have said much more than I started to say, and I must apologize for the space I have taken. I do hope, however, that I have satisfied the McGill student body that our failure to supply much in the way of extramural sports was due not to the lack of attempt, but rather, to our over-zealousness in observing the spirit of the C.I.A.U. agreement of last June.

Thank you very much for grant-

John Foster of McGill Places 3rd in Ski Jump

The first ski jumping event of the year at the Cotes des Neiges Hill saw John Foster, wearing the McGill colours, emerge in third place. Leading home the field of seventeen entrants was Alex Riddell, also a student of the university but performing under the auspices of the S.C.M.

Riddell, with a leap of 134 feet, had the longest jump of the afternoon and was 2.3 points ahead of his nearest rival, Punch Bott, also of the S.C.M. Foster, with distances of 119, 126 and 120 feet, trailed Bott by 3.7 points.

Rolf Olsen, also of the S.C.M., but at the same time a student at the university, placed seventh. The results:

McGill All-Star Team Plays Loyola C.O.T.C.

Hockey Game Scheduled for January 27th

On Tuesday evening, January 27th, an all-star aggregation of McGill's hockey players will battle the Loyola C.O.T.C. at the Loyola rink. This is the first time this year that an official Red and White hockey team is playing an outside squad. Not since the exciting game against the Black Watch last year have McGill's hockey fans had an opportunity to cheer their own team on to victory.

To make sure that this year's exhibition game will end in victory a group of topnotch players have already been selected to do justice to the reputation of the most time-honoured sport on the campus. At least ten all-star veterans who helped trounce the strong killed team last year will take to the ice together with the finest that the intramural league has to offer.

First practice for the all-star team will take place this Wednesday, January 21st, at the Forum at the usual hours of 12:30 to 1:30. A second practice will be held at the same time and place on Friday, January 23rd.

Included among the veterans of last year's all-star tussle who will again play on the McGill squad are Grant Morrison, now in the Senior Group, who scored two goals and made one assist in last year's exhibition tilt, goalie Ross Ritchie, Bruce Ward, also in the Senior Group, as well as Ian Hellyer, Bob Cleary, Bill Macdonald, Bruce Crutchfield, J. Keay, V. Young, H. Owen, and J. Hibbard. Newcomers to the all-star ranks, chosen thus far include G. F. Marriott, E. Smith, and G. Lafavre of football fame, and R. J. Malenfant, A. Moncel, C. W. McEachern, and A. Gagnon.

The following is a complete list of players scheduled to practice on Wednesday: I. Hellyer, R. Ritchie, J. Keay, G. F. Marriott, B. Cleary, E. Smith, W. K. Macdonald, Bruce Ward, R. J. Malenfant, V. Young, A. Moncel, B. Crutchfield, H. Owen, G. Morrison, C. McEachern, G. Lafavre, J. Hibbard, and A. Gagnon.

Soldiers Attack Marines In Battle on Forum Ice

Marines' High Standing at Stake

The high-standing Marines will be out to defend their favoured position today when the Infantry squad meets them at the Forum.

The Infantry men will be facing a hard-hitting team. Coach B. J. Cleary of the Marines should give the Tommies a fighting game throughout. The Marines boast another all-star at their centre position, Earl Smith, who is the scoring leader of the team. On the other hand the Marines are up against the league's best goaler, veteran all-star Rose Ritchie, as well as two other all-stars, Keay and Hillyer.

BOTH TEAMS STRONG

With both teams strong on both the offensive and defensive, and with the Marines trying to retain their position while the Infantry squad tries to make a place for itself in the upper ranks of the league, today's game has all the earmarks of developing into one of the most exciting games of the week.

Wrestling Practices to be Resumed in B.W.F. Room

Wrestling practices, under the experienced and able guidance of Frank Saxon, are starting again this afternoon in the B.W. & F. room. As was the case before the Christmas and Mid-seasonal break, the workouts will take place every Monday and Friday afternoon at 5.15 p.m.

Due to the success of the novice assault-at-arms, plans are now being considered by the Athletics' Department to hold an open tournament some time in the near future.

New Schedule Formed For Volleyball League

The Inter-Platoon Volleyball League as was held during the last session will be discontinued. Due to the decrease in the size of the platoons of the M.R.T.B. from last year, the Intramural council has decided that the quota per company was too high, and consequently every company will be allowed to enter as many teams as it wishes. This new league will function every Wednesday, with the first game being held on January the 21st. The time will be 5.15 p.m. for all games except those in which the Mac teams or the R.C.A.F. teams will be involved.

To date, the R.C.A.F. and G Company have entered two teams each, and A, C, D, E, and F Companies, along with the Independents and the C.O.T.C., have entered one team each.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES.

Wed. Jan. 21st at 5.15 p.m.—D Coy. vs. E Coy.
Wed. Jan. 21st at 5.15 p.m.—A Coy. vs. Independents.
Wed. Jan. 21st at 5.15 p.m.—F Coy. vs. G Coy.

Wed. Jan. 21st at 5.15 p.m.—C Coy. vs. C.O.T.C.
The remainder of the schedule will appear in the Daily from time to time.

ASSURES SECURITY

Whether the present arrangement satisfies the needs, will be seen in the number of exhibitions that are promoted in the time to come. It is not actually an endorsement of sport, and in the opinion of Dink Caroli, of The Gazette, is merely a toleration of it. However, it is unlikely that ness Americans are taking all this preparation, everyone is asking what chance has the Luftwaffe in negotiating an Atlantic crossing and similar questions. And unfortunately there is danger in this attitude.

Not for one moment do we deride all these preparations. We would like to see them sped up, if anything. But all this preparation against air attack is defense, and a good deal of passive defense at that. Defense and defensive thinking cannot win a war.

For the most part Americans are more concerned about seeing Heinkel over the Empire State Building than sending B-17s over the Wilhelmstrasse. Germans should be thinking of seeing overhead a white star rather than Americans thinking of Nazi swastikas above.

We are not asking why the Army hasn't sent our own pilots and bombers to join the RAF in blasting the Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst at Brest, or to help the Russians bomb retreating columns of the Reichwehr on the Eastern front.

We may not have the planes at present but Americans are not even thinking in terms of bombing Berlin. Those who talk about giving prize money to the first American pilot to blast Tokyo are expressing either an emotional response to the bombing of Manila or a belief that the war lords of the Mikado are the real and only enemies. In any event, they are not looking very realistically at the present military situation. Raids on Tokyo by American squadrons from Kodiak are far less plausible at this moment than raids on Berlin from Britain.

The President by his speech on Tuesday has the offensive spirit, and has promised an AEF for the Far East and the British Isles. It's about time we as a nation thought in the same terms.

The mere creation of an AEF, however, won't give all Americans the offensive spirit. England sent a BEF to Flanders, saw the cream of her manhood come back across the Channel with hardly clothes on their backs. She saw Coventry and large parts of London reduced to rubble before she demanded RAF reprisals. And she demanded more than reprisals. England demanded total war.

What about America? Do we have to see our first AEF come back in machine-gun ridden transports from Dakar, the Azores, Singapore, or any other strategic place because we at home did not support it in either spirit or supplies.

England's offensive spirit in the early days of the war got no farther than the singing of "We'll Hang Out the Washing on the Siegfried Line." Will ours linger in the stanzas of "We'll Take the Yaps Out of the Japs" before stark catastrophe overtakes us, too? Do we have to see our own Coventry and Londons in rubble before we demand total war?

We must man the air raid warning posts, but we must man the bomb sights, likewise.

Goeds Announce Turnabout Time

cutive last night when the event was announced.

The period of festivities will be opened by the Coed Coast next Tuesday. Popular in years past as the Sadie Slide, this event is held at the Park Toboggan and Ski Club on top of Mount Royal. For those who do not like speeding down the toboggan slide at 60 miles an hour, there is skating on Beaver Lake and skiing, followed by dancing in the Club House.

The Spinster Spree in R.V.C. will wind up festivities on Thursday night. An annual R.V.C. event for several years, this function was incorporated in Sadie Hawkins' Week in 1938, but lives on despite the deep mourning for that Dogpatch damsel's untimely decease.

Tickets for Turnabout Time events will be on sale this week, the executive of the Women's Union announced last night.

having received no offers from the eligible males of the town, it was decreed by her father that a "Sadie Hawkins Day" should be set aside, on which young women were to chase the young men of the town in a race, the men who were caught being required to marry their captors. Miss Hawkins caught and married the young man of her choice, and lived happily up until the time of her death.

In years following her marriage, Miss Hawkins' tradition was revered at McGill and many other universities by the celebration of a Sadie Hawkins Week, during which time usual procedure was reversed, and the girls escorted the boys to various functions in Sadie's honour.

Due to the demise of Sadie Hawkins, the former festivals cannot be held, as they would be out of keeping with the atmosphere of death. Miss Hawkins' life and work, however, will be commemorated in their own fashion by McGill students, as a tribute to her memory.

He—leaning over toward her
"Mumble, mumble, mumble."

She—with a ready smile, "Paradon?"
He—leaning 'til the chair creaks, "Mumble, mumble, mumble."

She—wrinkling her brow very prettily, "What?"
He—"Mumble! Mumble! Mumble!" as he stretches his neck frantically.

She—with a false dawn of comprehension on her face, and a wide smile of appreciation on her lips, "Oh, Yes!"

He—leaning back with a sigh into his seat, relaxing his strained neck, murmuring to himself, "It wasn't a bit funny the third time I said it. But she didn't hear it anyway."

Incidents of the above general type are multiplied indefinitely in the average man's career of witty sayings. They occur on the dance floor, in church, sometimes even in lectures. All this my idea would cure.

The whole thing is this: A little mouthpiece, such as telephone girls have, affixed to the man with a wire leading up by his right ear to a spine or tower on the top of his head, thence by artistic loops and curls of wire to a similar spine fixed on her head then to a single earphone on her right ear. This with the addition of a battery or two would be all that was needed.

Just imagine now, how different the conversation reported above would be with this arrangement! Foresight tells us that serious complaints might come from the girls stating that they should have a mouthpiece also and not be forced to do all the listening. In response to such complaints a double system could be constructed. The use of such systems, however, should be discouraged as much as possible. Girls by much practice have perfected a technique which make such systems very often unnecessary, and besides who's paying for this date anyway?

THEIR MEIN KAMPF
When the Tanaka Memorial (a plan for world conquest by Japan) was published in 1929, an incredulous world refused to believe a word of it. The Japs had succeeded in getting themselves cloaked with an aura of romantic nonsense. We regarded them as simple, harmless and charmingly innocent characters out of Gilbert and Sullivan. It has taken the death of several million men, women and children to dispel the fallacy.

The Japanese are in truth a cynical, cold-blooded and cruel nation of racial-egomaniacs. Although repudiated at the time it was published, history has proven the Tanaka Memorial to be the Japanese Mein Kampf.
